Inquiring Reporter

The Salem War Memorial Committee's fund campaign to erect a veterans marker prompted the Inquiring Reporter to ask 8 persons: "Do you think the proposed monument to the memory of World War II veterans should be placed on the Village Green?" Here are their replies:

Mrs. Galen Duncan, 836 E. 4th St., secretary to nurse, Salem Senior High School: "Perhaps it would be all right if it could be in the form of a floral remembrance to make the Village Green more beautiful, but to list names—No. Those men who would be listed would probably prefer the money be used for a more constructive purpose."

Mrs. Ralph Zimmerman, 1464 Cleveland St., past president of Salem Garden Club: "Most definitely not. It would spoil the appearance of an already very attractive corner which is complete as it is now. To me, it would be more appropriate placed either at the entrance of Centennial park or in one of the two cemeteries where there are already monuments for soldiers in the past wars."

Mrs. Albert Lesch, 670 W. Wilson St., manager, Dean's Jewelers: "No. I think it should be entailed with the Memorial Building, which was designated by Mr. Mullins as a memorial for World I veterans. I think a memorial to World War II veterans should be combined with the one for our other fallen heroes."

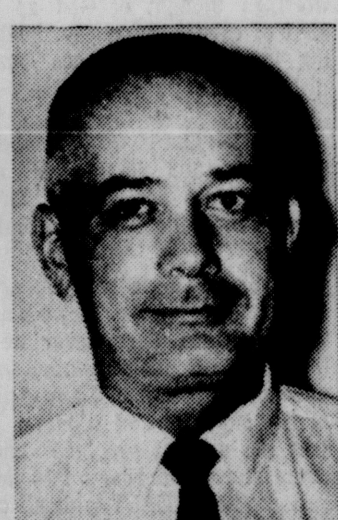

Edward J. Hart, 195 W. 10th St., vice president, McMillan Abstract Co.: "No. I feel that a better location would be the entrance to Centennial Park. First, the land on which the Village Green is situated is too small to accommodate a memorial of the size being planned; secondly, by placing the War Memorial at the entrance to the park, I feel that people would be more likely to stop and pay tribute."

Gary Moffett, 1683 South-east Blvd., buyer-salesman, Moffett's Men's Wear: "I think it is a wonderful idea that Salem will have a monument on the village green for all to see, dedicated to those who left their homes to protect the freedom we now enjoy."

Richard Capel, 1101 E. 10th St., realtor: "I think there could be other locations which might be better than the village green, due to the fact that it would be hard for people to see or fully enjoy a memorial placed in the Village Green."

W. F. Stevenson, M.D., 633 N. Union Ave., member of Salem Park Commission: "Yes, I think the memorial to the World War II veterans should be placed on the Village Green where it will be plainly visible to all who pass through the city."

Mrs. Frank Mason, 1250 Carole Dr., president, Salem Garden Study Club: "I have felt that the village green is a landmark and, since there are other suitable places for the memorial, the Village Green should remain untouched."

Fire Ends Bizarre Day; Two Are Dead

COSHOCKTON, Ohio (AP) — The grisly death of a former mental patient in his flaming farmhouse ended a bizarre day in Coshocton County which began with the shooting of his wife.

All that remained in the case it appeared, was a coroner's ruling whether Richard Carroll, 35, died of a self-inflicted gun shot wound or from the blaze which he apparently set himself.

The bodies of Carroll and his wife, Twila, 33, were removed from the rubble of his farmhouse late Friday night.

The conditions of the bodies made it impossible to determine immediately the cause of their deaths, but sheriff's deputies said they believed Mrs. Carroll was killed by a shot fired by her husband earlier Friday.

Mrs. Carroll, who had filed for a divorce May 15, was living with her sister, Mrs. Glen Smith of rural Coshocton.

Mrs. Smith said Carroll came to her house Friday morning and tried unsuccessfully to persuade his wife to return home. Later he returned, Mrs. Smith said, stuck a shotgun through the door and shot Mrs. Carroll. He then put his wife's body in the trunk of his car, Mrs. Smith told Sheriff William Hoop Jr.

Carroll then returned to his own home. He set fire to his car after drenching it with gas.

On Civil Rights Measure

Cloture Doubted By Sen. Russell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard B. Russell, leader of Southern forces, declared today that Senate leaders "do not now have the votes to gag us" with cloture in the civil rights debate.

Nor, he added, have the Dixie senators fighting the bill been able to muster the one-third support needed to block a move to limit debate.

Thus he indicated that if a cloture vote were taken now, the outcome would depend on the undetermined positions of a handful of senators.

"There are four or five votes we don't know where they're going," the Georgia Democrat said in an interview.

It takes two-thirds of the senators present and voting to shut off prolonged debate with cloture. This would mean 67 if all 100 senators were recorded.

Republican senators had their third caucus on the measure Friday. Afterward GOP supporters of the civil rights bill said they thought they would have enough votes, with the Democrats, to invoke cloture when the showdown comes.

But various senators had different estimates of how many GOP votes would be needed. And both Republican and Democratic proponents said they are counting on President Johnson to win over the few senators still on the fence.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said he

Jones of Columbus, general commercial manager of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co.'s Southwestern Area, when he speaks to Beaver Local High School seniors at commencement exercises Friday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. The class is comprised of 122 boys and girls.

William Tychonievich, class valedictorian, and Judith Shepard, salutatorian, will give student talks, following the welcome by class president Roger Vincent.

The invocation will be by Rev. Fred A. Shultz, pastor of the Elkton Methodist Church. Recognition awards will be made by Beaver School Principal Roy Cashdollar, while the formal class presentation will be handled by executive head George Van Horne.

The school orchestra directed by Rocco DeMart will provide the processional and recessional music, while special numbers will be a vocal solo, "Climb Every Mountain," by Chloe Ann Plate, accompanied by Nancy Swaney, and a number by the Senior Girls Ensemble, "Halls of Ivy." Lorna Elliott will be organist for the program.

Tomorrow night's baccalaureate service at 8 p.m. at the high school will feature a sermon on "Remembering Instead of Forgetting" by Rev. Russell Shepherd of Long's Run United Presbyterian Church. The invocation and benediction will be given by Rev. Melvin Wohrley of the East Fairfield and Rogers Methodist Churches.

NAACP Files Suit In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has filed suit in U.S. District Court asking an end to what it charges is segregation of pupils and segregated assignment of teachers in the Cleveland public schools.

The suit filed Friday requests also that the board be required to submit a plan for desegregation of schools and be made to stop construction of three elementary schools the suit alleges "would promote segregation planned by the board."

The NAACP alleged in its petition that a majority of the Cleveland public schools are 95 per cent or more either white or Negro.

A battery of 14 NAACP lawyers headed by Robert L. Carter of New York, General NAACP counsel, filed the suit in behalf of 21 Negro children — through their parents.

Named as defendants were the seven-member Cleveland school board, Supt. William B. Levenson, nine heads of school departments and five contracting companies.

Ralph A. McAllister, school board president, said the suit represents "mere allegations."

He said he was glad to see the issue being battled in the courts "at least instead of the streets."

The NAACP petition said "good faith efforts have been made to negotiate with the Board of Education to get it to cease and discontinue the unlawful and discriminatory practices. The board has 'failed, refused and neglected to take action," the petition charged.

More Military Aid To Southeast Asia Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evidence was building today that the United States was preparing for broader military action in Southeast Asia unless the crisis there cools off soon.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk unfurled the warning signals in a speech Friday night. He accused Red North Viet Nam of aggression against Laos and South Viet Nam, and he declared the South Viet Nam war may be expanded "if the Communists persist in their course of aggression."

The blunt words from the usually mild Rusk were taken as a possibility of action directly against North Viet Nam, a move that has drawn increasing discussion here since the Laotian crisis began developing a week ago.

Rusk said the United States has made it clear it is not going to abandon people and this, he stressed, is a signal which must be read with great care in other capitals, particularly Hanoi and Peking.

On the diplomatic front, Rusk's speech before the American Law Institute meeting here also indicated the United States and its allies had received no encouragement in their efforts to persuade the Communists to end their drives in Southeast Asia.

There were persistent reports President Johnson will make some basic decisions on the U.S.

course in Southeast Asia within the next few days.

Beefing up its force in Southeast Asia, the United States has moved a carrier task force into the South China Sea off South Viet Nam.

The carrier will be used to launch U.S. Navy Crusader jets on reconnaissance missions over Communist Pathet Lao areas in Laos.

One such plane, swooping in for low-level photographs, was reported hit by Pathet Lao ground fire but made it back to the carrier Kitty Hawk.

The State Department disclosed that the first reports from the reconnaissance flights have been turned over to the Laos government and the International Control Commission charged with supervising Laos' neutrality.

The Soviet Union denounced U.S. policy Friday as the main source of tension in Southeast Asia but backed a French call for a new 14-nation conference to restore peace in Laos.

It was part of a flurry of diplomatic activity centering on the strife in Laos. But the renewal of border conflict between Cambodia and South Viet Nam and increased Communist activity against the U.S.-backed South Vietnamese government stirred Western fears for all of Southeast Asia.

Henry Ford II Backs Johnson

Predicts President Will Be Re-Elected

DETROIT (AP) — Auto maker Henry Ford II says he will support President Johnson for re-election no matter whom the Republicans nominate.

Ford, board chairman of the Ford Motor Co., said Friday his vote for Johnson would be his first for a Democratic presidential candidate.

His endorsement was given to Johnson during the President's brief stopover in Detroit.

Ford described Johnson as "terrific" and predicted the President would have no trouble winning in November.

"He's doing an excellent job as President," Ford said. "I've heard him say many times that he's for all the people in the country — for business, labor and the general public. I agree with what he says."

Ford's comments were made as Johnson shook hands with politicians and some of the 25,000 people who greeted him at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. The President stopped briefly en route to deliver the University of Michigan commencement address at Ann Arbor.

Johnson told the crowd: "This welcome moves me to recall an old son—Will You Love Me in November as You do in May?"

"I don't want you to forget me later on in the fall," he added.

Cars Hit 2 Boys Riding Bicycles

Two boys, one from Salem and the other of near Lisbon, were injured when their bicycles were hit by cars in two separate mishaps Friday.

Admitted to Salem City Hospital with contusions of the abdomen and head injuries was Richard Hill, 15, of Blacks Rd., Lisbon.

The Salem youth, Kevin Noll, 7, of 786 E. 4th St., was treated at Salem Central Clinic for abrasions of both knees and left arm, back, left side of face and a bump on the left eyebrow.

Hill, who lives with his grandmother, Mrs. M. Hill of RD 2, Lisbon, is in fair condition following his admission at 10:45 p.m. Friday.

Hill was cycling with a friend to the latter's home to plan a camping out when his bike was hit from behind by a Lisbon area motorist the Lisbon post of the State Highway Patrol reported was drunk.

The victim and Tom Ward,

14, of RD, Lisbon, were heading eastward toward the Ward home Friday at 9:20 p.m. on Route 154, a half mile east of Lisbon, when an eastbound car, operated by Jack Donnalley, 32, of RD 3, Lisbon, hit Hill's bike from the rear. The Patrol said the cycle had no lights.

Donnalley was cited by Patrolman R. L. Reed for driving while under the influence of alcohol. Reed is continuing the investigation.

The Noll youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rhinehart Noll, rode his bike from an alley into the path of a car operated by John Balan, 52, of 1121 E. 3rd St., Friday at 4:38 p.m. The mishap occurred in front of 754 E. 3rd as Balan was going west. He was not cited.

Ted Albright Recovers In Hospital

Boy Saved From Near-Drowning

An early morning swim in Berlin Lake today nearly cost a Salem High School senior his life out, thanks to the first aid training of a friend, he is in "fair" condition at Salem Central Clinic where he was admitted at 5:30 a.m. for observation.

Ted Albright, 18, of 1016 Liberty St. was one of a group of teen-agers attending a party on the northwest shore of the lake. Several of the group were swimming when they noticed that Ted had been missing for five to 10 minutes.

A search party was started. Jeff McArtor, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McArtor of 989 N. Lincoln Ave. and a junior at the school, began swimming across the lake, while three other boys, Kenneth Hess, 18, of 691 N. Ellsworth Ave., Louis Pilch, 16, and Roger Smith, 17, started driving around the lake in a car.

Young McArtor found the Albright youth approximately three-fourths of the way across the lake with his head down in 15 feet of water. Using his training in first aid, he pulled the youth to shore and started administering artificial respiration. By that time, the other three had arrived with the car and immediately rushed the Life Begins At 80!

Oldsters Make News By Acting Young

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes, life begins at twice 40. At 80, Jeannette "Grandma" Rothberger gets her bachelor of arts degree today from the University of Arizona.

In Los Angeles, May Case, 88 pounds and 90 years old, gets an award as the "Newspaper Girl of the Year."

The passing years haven't bothered cosmetics manufacturer Helena Rubinstein, either. At the age of 90-plus, she routed would-be robbers in her Park Avenue apartment Friday with a firm, "Get out!"

The Soviet news agency Tass reported that Russian Shirlai Mislimov doesn't mind advancing age, either. He turned down a six-mile car ride to a birthday party — his 159th, Tass said. Mislimov said he preferred to ride a horse to the party.

Mrs. Rothberger had wanted a college degree since 1901, when she landed at Ellis Island from Romania. But she had to drop out twice.

Thirty-four years ago she left college because of a daughter's illness. When she tried again

LBJ Renews Marshall Plan

Pledges U.S. Support To Eastern Europe

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — President Johnson declared today that we will continue to build bridges across the gulf which has divided us from Eastern Europe in order to realize the Marshall Plan's vision of a Europe joined in peace.

They will be bridges of increased trade, of ideas, of visitors and of humanitarian aid," Johnson said in an address before the "captains and companions" of the late World War II Army chief of staff and cold war Secretary of State, George C. Marshall.

Johnson described Marshall as "among the noblest Americans of them all. Not only a great soldier, not only a great statesman, he was first and foremost a great man."

Johnson's remarks came in a speech delivered at the dedication of George C. Marshall Research Library.

Assembled for the ceremonies at Marshall's alma mater, Virginia Military Institute, were Johnson, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, top officials of government, and more than 50 generals who served under Marshall during World War II.

Former President Harry S. Truman was unable to attend because of illness.

'Friendly' IRS Tax Collector Resigns Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mortimer M. Caplin, who sought to provide friendly service in what many U.S. citizens regard as an unfriendly field — collecting taxes — is quitting his job as commissioner of Internal Revenue.

His resignation, effective July 10, has been accepted with regret by President Johnson.

Caplin, appointed as head U.S. tax collector by the late President John F. Kennedy Feb. 7, 1961, told Johnson that "personal responsibilities are compelling me to leave government and return to private life."

At the time of his appointment Caplin was a law professor at the University of Virginia and a practicing lawyer in Charlottesville. He specialized in tax law.

When he took office, Caplin set out to encourage the taxpayer by offering friendly service. "The taxpayer is going to get a good deal more assistance," he said.

He aimed at expanded tax education and improved tax forms and instruction sheets.

Damascus Community Center Being Expanded

Ruritans, Garden Club Active In Town's Project

An idea in the minds of a group of Damascus citizens about eight years ago has been transformed into a beautiful Community Center by donations totaling $18,000 and a lot of hard work by many individuals.

The Center, which is just southwest of the village on the Damascus - North Georgetown Road, is adorned by plentiful woods, a Little League baseball field, several pavilions and an old log cabin, as well as a newly-constructed lodge.

THE CENTER COVERS 23 acres of ground which was purchased as two different adjoining tracts. The first piece of land was obtained from the late Rev. Charles Bailey and later another parcel was received from Leonard Redman.

The fact that $18,000 was donated for the Center by residents of the small village, shows what a keen interest lies in the project. The area is well - patronized by families on picnics as well as various groups which hold meetings there.

Much of the work in later years has been done by clubs which use the Center as "projects." One such project was the new concrete block building which was erected by the Damascus Ruritans.

The citizens are not complacent. They feel that the grounds can be made more beautiful in their natural surroundings and the Damascus Garden Club members have assisted. The club held its recent flower show in the pavilion.

The Damascus Community Center trustees hope to expand the facilities to include playground equipment for the youths, including a basketball court.

Finding the Way

In Murky Waters

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

We were flying at an altitude of 15,000 feet, and talking about life at the bottom of the ocean. My seat mate was a distinguished scientist whose technical skills are assisting in the development of the possibilities of underwater exploration.

He told of the problems of breathing, the necessity of understanding the strange underwater sounds, and the enormous challenges of the pressure of the sea.

Among other problems he recounted the dilemma of the pioneer who ventures from his protective capsule. Garbed in his strange sea costume he starts out to explore the ocean depths, searching for new oil reserves and minerals, or just making surveys of the ancient topography. Immediately he kicks up mud and is lost in a cloud which he himself has aroused.

THE SITUATION is a vivid one. We can consider all the angry turmoil stirred into blackness by our own endeavors.

The man at the bottom of the ocean will be protected by a kind of radar device which sends out sound waves, and "sees" for the man who is able to understand the pattern. Suppose that we had such a moral sound wave or a clear sense of what we call God's providence?

It's this which the ancients discussed in their search for a way of life. A casual reading of these events in Scripture would seem to indicate that these worthies thought of God as a kind of divine sound ray, keeping them out of scrapes and difficulties.

THIS IS TRUE ONLY when we understand that in all of their dreams and visions, God was sending them back to their tasks.

Read your Bible and you are impressed with the fact that these persons were never delivered from dealing with the problem. This wasn't any "pie in the sky" kind of religion. It sent the ancient prophets and their later counterparts into the battle. They DEALT with all of the muddled situations.

They had that inner courage to do what they believed God wanted them to do.

OUR PRAYERS

are not for escape, but for light. Our hopes are not only for deliverance, but for guidance. Our faith is not to dodge the fact that these are tough problems; our faith is the assurance that these tough problems can be solved, that we can see through the muddy waters, that we can find our way.

Science may make it possible for us to build a kind of city at the bottom of the ocean. Faith in the God of us all can still make it possible for us to build a city of righteousness on the surface of this planet.

We need the knowledge of that guidance, even as we explore the moon and our own seas' depths.

Doctor? Lawyer? Merchant? Already Bobbie's parents are planning for his future. They're saving to give him the best education obtainable, because they want him to be happy and successful . . . a son to be proud of.

It would be splendid if a good education automatically led to happiness and success, but unfortunately it doesn't. Many well-educated men and women have failed utterly when it came to living a stable and worthwhile life, because they lacked the strength of character that would have sustained them.

There is no better training ground for the building of character than the Christian Church. There children are encouraged to follow a way of life that will not fail them, and to respect themselves and their fellows.

Give your child every chance to succeed. Make sure that his education includes a thorough knowledge of the time-tested Christian truths.

ALL FOR THE CHURCH THE CHURCH FOR ALL

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

All the Walls Have Ears

Our State Department has posed one of those nagging questions that keep our lives from being complacent: Why the disclosure that more than 40 microphones had been put into the walls of the U. S. embassy in Moscow when Russia remodeled the building more than 12 years ago?

It had been assumed for these last 12 years that Russian workmen had installed listening devices. Russia would not let the United States build its own embassy. It wouldn't even let the United States watch the Russian workmen doing the remodeling. It had aroused suspicion.

Enclosures had been built by U.S. workmen inside the embassy rooms, for confidential conversations. No one ever doubted that the embassy was "bugged." After all, this was the building in which a secret listening device had been found inside the eagle of the U. S. emblem displayed behind the desk of the U. S. ambassador.

Moreover, it has been an article of faith for years that the government of Russia, guided by nothing but rules of expediency — a government devoid of principles and untrammelled by codes of decency and sportsmanship — always would take every possible advantage of another government. U. S. foreign policy is built on that conviction; that the Soviet Union means harm to all other governments.

What's about to pop that made this the time to put Russia on the defensive for routine spying? Are the Russians about to larrup the United States with a disclosure?

Advertising Pitch

The only thing that leaves us colder than the "quarrel" between Mrs. Jerrie Mock and Mrs. Joan Merriam Smith, who recently flew airplanes around the earth, is heavyweight boxing.

In this squabble the two women are having, or pretending to have, the issue is — or seems to be — which is the better flier. There's foolish talk about settling this with a showdown in direct competition.

That would be more conclusive than their indirect competition, in which Mrs. Mock of Columbus required 29 days to fly 22,858 miles and Mrs. Smith used up 57 days to fly 27,500 miles on world-circling flights.

As to what the flights proved or what might be proved by an actual race, the only thing that comes to our mind is not the relative piloting skill of the two women but the relative advertising value to the manufacturers of their airplanes.

This is presumably what all their flying has been about from the beginning. Not that it's wrong; Charles A. Lindbergh made that historic hop across the Atlantic in the Spirit of St. Louis to publicize an airplane and the practicality of flight. But an advertising pitch is not crucial enough to involve any of us in a fight between two women.

Safe Boating

Warm weather and well-filled lakes in the district have brought out boaters in great numbers, with legions of swimmers soon to follow.

Dangers accompany each sport, with the accident rate increasing throughout the nation as more and more watercraft are being used. According to the Ohio Division of Natural Resources, boating accident fatalities last year totaled 1,167 in the United States, an increase over the previous year, and injuries rose from 960 to 1,164.

The majority of these involved motorboats, not the sailing craft which are covered pictorially on another page in today's News. The greatest single cause of loss of life was motorboat capsizing, attributed to the fact that operators overloaded their craft.

Safe boating tips and regulations are obtainable from the U. S. Coast Guard and also the Outboard Boat Club of America.

State Patrol's Job

Strict, fair law enforcement is the code of the Ohio Highway Patrol which does a highly commendable job of serving the motoring public.

Despite the Patrol's high ethics, some disgruntled drivers who have been haled into court for motor vehicle laws infractions, have charged that the patrolmen are on a "quota" system of arrests. Even if this were true, such a policy would defeat the Patrol's basic function. Nevertheless, this does not mean that traffic violators are going to escape being stopped and corrected, points out Col. Anson B. Cook, Patrol superintendent. In fact, patrolmen of the Lisbon and Canfield barracks who cover the greater Salem district are going to make an all-out effort to stem the traffic casualty rate. No leniency will be shown to unsafe drivers, warns Col. Cook.

The Patrol's job is to stop the careless, reckless drivers in order to protect the majority who obey the rules of the road.

Bloody Beaches

By Truman Twill

Nothing that has been spewed out during the uprising of 20th century youth has scared me like mob battles on Britain's southern beaches.

Here, where the British lion crouched to withstand a German cross-Channel attack that never came in World War II, rival gangs of British boys and girls—the Mods and Rockers—fought each other with fists, knives and clubs.

It scares me. I can understand why gangs of punks in big cities tie into each other, because they're animals confined in cages. They have nothing else to do but fight each other, nowhere to go but around the block.

Even in small towns where many of us grew up under nearly ideal circumstances there was rivalry between gangs, even between towns. It found an outlet in ball games often rather than in brawls, but it was there.

But itinerant youth war in Britain is not caused by overcrowding. These young people are roaming the roads on motorcycles and scooters looking for an "enemy." Boys and girls are in the melee together. This is social upheaval. It scares me.

I CANNOT understand it — and things you can't understand are scariest.

It is natural, I believe, for the young to do battle with the old—one of the immutable patterns of the animal kingdom. Old walrus all know the time will come when young walrus will shave them off the cliff. No matter how well and how long they fight, the old will get licked by the generation behind them.

It is natural for the young to fight among themselves in geographic patterns—east sides vs. west sides, town vs. town, New Town vs. Old Town etc.

But when young men and women take sides on a basis of what they wear, as they are doing today in Britain, how can that be explained? Mods wear exaggerated versions of stylish clothing. Rockers favor boots and leather jackets.

Wild as the males of this new British breed are turning out to be, wilder yet are the females—the "birds." Even in America's "lost generation" after World War I nothing like the "birds" ever was hatched out. "Birds" got their name from the way they look perched on the pillions of motorbikes and scooters.

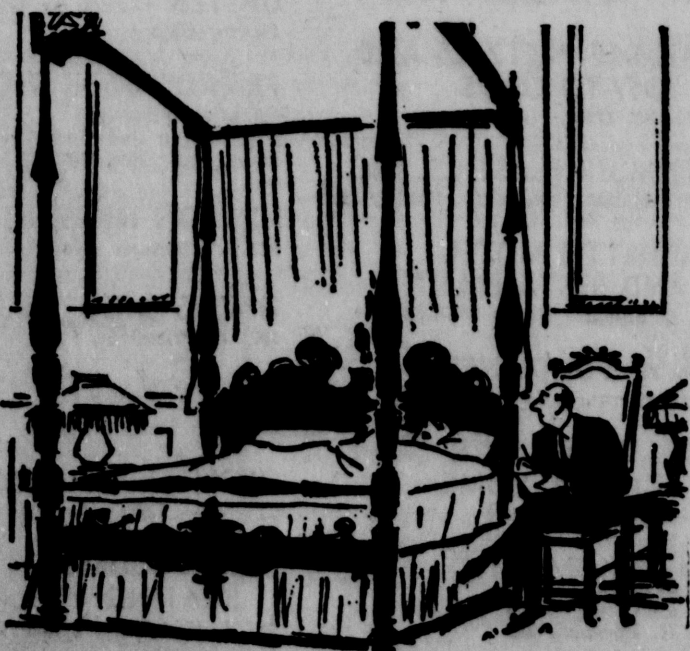

But they're earning their reputations as practitioners of violence par excellence, and the female always ends up being the deadlier of the species. A wild boy is bad, but a wild girl is horror.

IT SCARES ME. There's a new pattern that I doubt if anyone understands.

We've had a sample of it here, too—conclaves of wild adolescents looking for trouble in Florida at Eastertime and finding it in all gradations of seriousness.

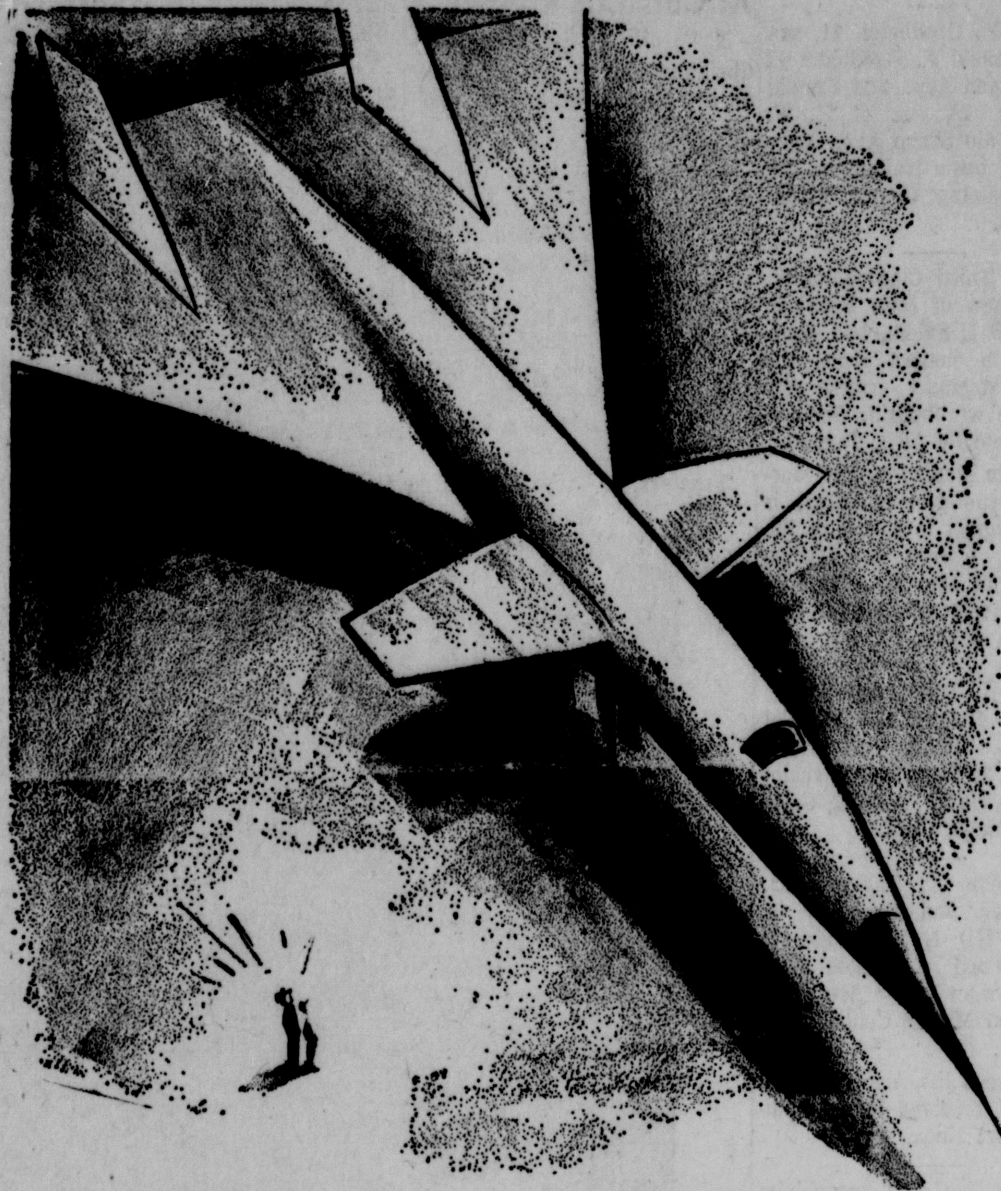

Things have been rough before, but never rougher than this Children's Crusade in reverse. Even an optimist must swallow hard and admit he is stumped when adolescents destroy each other for the hell of it.

It makes that horror movie, "Lord of the Flies," begin to seem like a way of life.

"... And to my beloved children, Pamela and Geoffrey, I give and bequeath my two tickets to 'Hello, Dolly!'"

At Stake In Hoffa Trial

By VICTOR RIESEL

Far more than the trial of grim Jim Hoffa is involved in the trial of Jim Hoffa here. What is really on trial is the ment is developing strong influence.

Few realize the vastness of these oceans of liquid cash and the truly gargantuan nature of their investment. The $25 million worth of Teamsters pension money which Hoffa and the other defendants are accused of fraudulently mishandling are proverbial "drops" in the sea.

Private welfare and pension funds now total almost $70 billion. These funds will top $235 billion by 1980. This is the people's money and should be a sacred trust, if you will forgive such old-fashioned sentiments.

MY GOOD FRIEND, Martin E. Segal, the country's ablest scientist in this field, tells me that these pension funds "buy more stocks than investment companies, banks, or individual investors and are growing at the rate of almost $6 billion a year."

In 1962 employee pension funds poured enough money into the stock market to buy up 80 per cent of all the new stock issued that year. In addition, they invested enough money in other securities to equal 17 per cent of all the new corporate bonds floated that year.

There are about 32,600 pension plans; 25,000 are controlled entirely by employer trustees. But the rest are either managed by board made up equally of union and management trustees or run directly by the unions themselves. These latter two groups are growing swiftly in cash and influence.

The International Ladies Garment Workers Union, led by the peppy but impeccable David Dubinsky, now has more than a billion dollars in its unimpeachably administered welfare and pension funds.

THE RAILROAD unions have funds reaching upwards of a billion dollars.

Typical of the giantism of this new flow of finances are group policies just "taken out" by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (Cleveland) and the Order of Railway Conductors and Brakemen (Cedar Rapids, Iowa). These two unions insured their members and their families for a face-value of more than half a billion dollars.

The policies cover life, accidental death and health for the actual members and hospital and medical expense benefits for their dependents. The yearly premiums will run close to $30 million.

Small wonder that the AFL-CIO conventions and executive council sessions are now covered by many of the big banks and brokerage houses. During the February mid-winter council meeting at the Americana in Bal Harbour, Fla., representatives of Chase Manhattan and other banks were as much in evidence as bricklayers' officials.

FINANCIAL MEN, by this time, were almost as well known and had little difficulty fraternizing with the labor leaders at the bar or in the lobbies.

One major bank, which always has a "hell fellow well met" chap at labor gatherings now, has more than $300 million worth of labor-management pension funds to place — or about 10 per cent of its investment capital.

Thus, Wall Street and the labor movement overlap. They have to. There are more than $17 billion worth of stocks and $18 billion worth of corporate bonds in the pension fund portfolios. The commissions and profits on these are astronomical.

And the funds must be objectively handled to prevent the tiniest part of them from becoming any one's private cash box. Undue control of any portion means undue power for the unscrupulous. Any ill-advised investments mean a loss for the folks who count on them to ease their way through old age.

THIS MONEY will pay pensions for more than four million retired workers (exclusive of former federal, state and municipal employees) by 1970. Ten years later this figure will grow to 6.5 million older persons who will get more than $3 billion a year from the private retirement funds now building up.

In the coming decades the elderly receiving pensions will total more than 25 million. These pension funds are the "stake out" for their old age.

That's why the trial of men accused of tampering with the future of so many folks is of such vital interest to the entire land.

Rights Imbroglia

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Many of the present members of Congress who won their seats by a very close margin are getting out their pencils and trying to figure what would happen in the election next November if as little as a per cent of the vote deserted them and crossed over to the other party.

It's a dilemma that faces both Republicans and Democrats.

The Democratic party has 76 seats more than the Republicans in the House of Representatives, and if 36 seats should be lost, control of the House would shift to the Republican party.

In the coming campaign, the civil rights issue is likely to invade both parties. While the election could leave the Democrats in control, it might actually mean in the session beginning next January the loss of a majority behind any further civil rights legislation and a resurgence of an opposition coalition of both parties.

MANY PEOPLE may think the civil rights controversy will be over when the pending bill in the Senate is enacted this year but the fact is large appropriations will be necessary—possibly many hundreds of millions of dollars — to enforce the most far-reaching statutes that will have been passed since prohibition days.

The cost of enforcing prohibition laws was heavy not only because of the need for more government agents to detect those who were violating the law but also because of the expenses of court procedures and legal processes involved.

The Republican party faces losses of seats, just as do the Democrats, on the civil rights issue in the coming campaign, because this question cuts both ways.

A Republican, for example, who has voted in the House for the civil rights measure is likely to be opposed in the primaries by someone in his own party attempting to garner the anti-civil rights vote.

Even if the incumbent is nominated, however, on his own party ticket, the aspirant in the opposite party for the same seat will also endeavor to get the benefit of all the discontent.

THE TECHNIQUE that is expected to develop is a familiar one. Thus, in the case of civil rights, especially in northern and western areas, certain candidates either in the primaries of both parties or in the final election will express approval for the principle of equal rights and equal opportunity. The incumbent member of the house who actually voted for the bill will face opposition because of all the flaws and defects in the legislation itself to which attention will be directed on the stump.

In the matter of public accommodations, for example, a candidate may contend that discrimination should be abolished but he will object to the methods by which the federal government attempts to interfere with the operation of hotels, motels, restaurants, barber shops and other facilities that are covered by the pending bill.

Also, many people who favor school desegregation do not like the idea of being required to open their business establishments to persons whom they may not like.

PERHAPS the biggest single issue will arise on the question of hiring employees, or what is known as discrimination in employment practices. In areas where there is a predominance of white voters, fears have already been expressed that whites may lose their jobs because of the pressure placed upon employers to hire Negroes in order to get or retain a government contract.

It's widely reported that mere discussion of this very phase of civil rights legislation has already turned public sentiment in many parts of the country against the pending measure.

The House of Representatives has, of course, already voted on the civil rights legislation, so the roll call of members is a matter of record but an aspirant who tries to take away the seat of an incumbent will find plenty of defects in the legislation itself and will argue that the bill should have been amended in the House.

The inference will be that the candidate making such criticism would have voted for revisions of the bill if he had been a member of the House. The emphasis will be on a change of seats, and the voters who are discontented with respect to various phases of civil rights will be expected to line up either against the Republican or Democrat who actually did vote for the civil rights legislation.

SEN. RICHARD RUSSELL of Georgia said the other day that the Maryland vote revealed a "groundswell among the people of this country," and he predicted that when the people become aware that the government is trying to force social equality, it will be an issue in every congressional race. He added:

"As I told the leader of this nation (President Johnson) in the only conversation I have had with him on this bill, he may pass this bill, but he will have more new faces in Congress in the next four to six years than any president has ever had."

There are at least 40 districts in which Democrats won seats in the House in the 1962 election by a vote of 5 per cent or less. These marginal districts are nearly all in the northern or border states.

Inasmuch as many Republicans also have voted for the civil rights legislation, a number of Republican seats will similarly be challenged by a "cross-over" among the voters.

Boating Is Popular With Salem District Residents

AFTER A LONG WINTER in which the boat lay in the garage for storage, it soon becomes the time to get the boat ship-shape. While Willard Albertsen and his daughter sand the hull, Mrs. Albertsen applies the paint. Boat will then be ready for the water.

RUN UP THE MAST SAIL — Boating enthusiasts for a number of years, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Smith of Salem rig up sails to enjoy an afternoon of sailing at Berlin. Boat is Snipe class model and is No. 8 off the line of 15,000 registered owners. Hull is made of fiberglass.

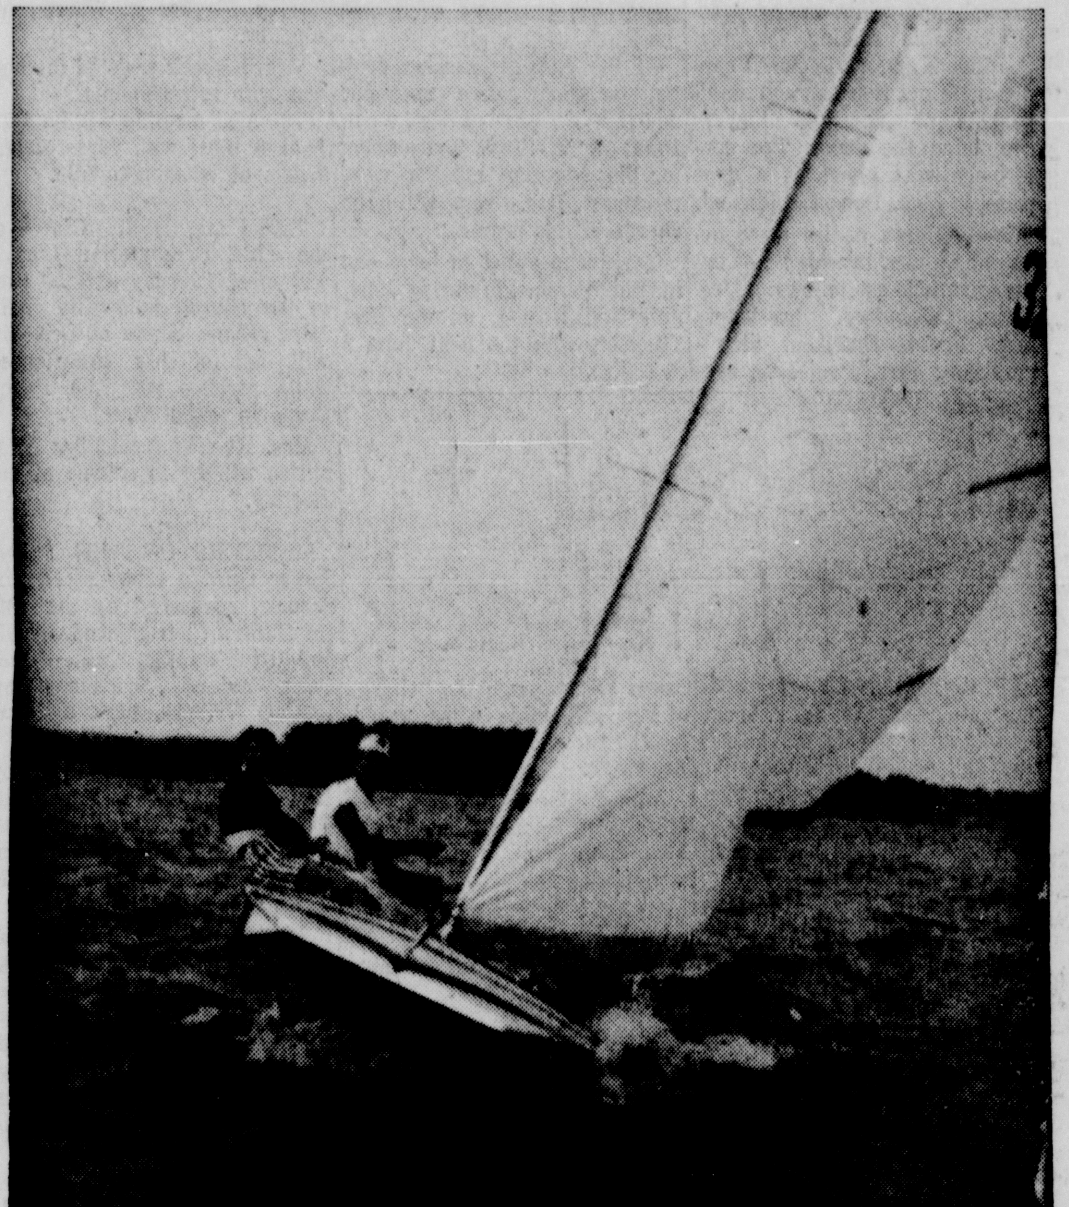

READY TO CAST OFF and enjoy some fine sailing are (l. to r.) Fred Farragher of Canfield, who owns the boat, Bob Griffiths and his two sons of Girard, and Will Fankhauser. Boat is a Flying Scott model.

TO ENJOY SAILING, A STEADY BREEZE is necessary. Here Al Fitch and his two sons, Alfie and Frank, enjoy the waters of Berlin Reservoir. Fitch, a Salem attorney, has a Flying Scott sail boat.

"CRASH BOAT" WHICH PATROLS Berlin Reservoir when people are out sailing is launched by (l. to r.) Thomas McArthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McArthur of Canfield, and Lester H. Cooper of North Benton. If a sailboat overturns, Cooper is there in his boat in a hurry to offer assistance.

Jim Ciminelli Is One of Them

Mushroom Gourmets 'Know Their Onions'

By GLENN SCHOTTEN
LEETONIA — Do not eat mushrooms and you will not be killed by them.

Years ago some anonymous sage penned those words, but there's a strong core of fanatic fungi foragers who never did, nor ever will heed the advice.

That's because, like those people who are said to "know their onions," they know their mushrooms.

While the beneficent April showers have brought the May flowers, they have coaxed from the rich, pregnant earth the Spring mushrooms. In their train come the collectors, as surely as the bees are drawn to blossoms.

PROBABLY NO ONE in the district can speak of these strange, saporific plants with more authority based on both study and experience than Jim Ciminelli of Leetonia. He's stalked the delectable food fungi ever since he was knee high to a tall toadstool.

The mushrooms he and other hunters are seeking out now are the morels, which connoisseurs regard as one of the most luscious in flavor, far better than commonly used to buddy around with steak.

They started poking their sponge-like heads above the loam in late April but usually reach their peak at apple blossom time or shortly thereafter, Ciminelli says. First comes the tannish or brown morel, which are several inches tall with a spongy, conical head borne on a hollow stalk. They cannot possibly be confused with the typically toadstool-shaped mushrooms, some of which can kill you.

A LITTLE LATER the "wood" mushrooms or half-free morellas emerge. While shaped similarly to the earlier relative, it is distinctive by its brownish-black head and a whitish stalk. All these morels are edible, Ciminelli says, as are all the puffballs. However, puffballs must be picked while young to be most palatable.

Ciminelli's "Bible" when in doubt about a mushroom is a 44-year-old special mushroom section published by National Geographic in May, 1920, with full-color plates and descriptions of edible and non-edible varieties.

ONE FUNGUS WHICH Ciminelli respects highly is the fly-mushroom which grows in Columbiana County. Jim first made the acquaintance of this deadly specimen as a child, when as one of 16 children on the home-stand where he still lives at 235 Chestnut St., he went with his father on mushroom-hunting expeditions.

He remembers his mother taking the fly mushroom, a beautiful thing to behold, and breaking it into small pieces. Putting the chunks in a dish, she covered them with sugar and set the saucer on the back porch.

Within seconds, flies started dropping dead after lapping up the sweet, lethal fluid. That was in pre-DDT days when fly populations swarms threatened to literally drive people out of their houses.

The fly-mushroom, a member of the dread Amanita genus, is a toadstool-type, yellowish or orange on top. A "death cup" at the base of the stalk is a trademark of the Amanitas.

Jim said scientists interested in the psychological phenomenon of ESP—extra sensory perception—have been pondering the possible connection between the extract of the fly-mushroom, perhaps used on the forehead, that purportedly gave some Egyptians clairvoyance and insight into future events. This point is pure speculation.

THE WHITE "DESTROYING" angel, Amanita phalloides, must be absolutely avoided, Jim says, along with the fly-mushroom, Amanita muscaria. Also extremely poisonous is the Jack - O - Lantern, an orange phosphorescent variety with powerful emetic properties.

Besides the morels now in their prime, Jim collects a couple of dozen types if they can be found, but he highly recommends that no field or woods mushroom be eaten unless the collector has previous proof that it is not poisonous or else consults an experienced mushroom gatherer.

Where Do You Fit In?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Our population is in a state of change and growth. Just how are women affected by this challenge of the '60s and the '70s to come? Here is what a new report on the American economic system has to say.

By JOY MILLER
NEW YORK (AP) — The blow fell at midcentury.

America's population shifted in 1950 so that, for the first time, women outnumbered men: 1,000 to 993.

In 1960, masculine ranks had thinned to 978.

By 1970, says a new economic study, there will be still fewer—972 men for every 1,000 lively ladies.

But the source of this projection, a Twentieth Century Fund survey called "U.S.A. and Its Economic Future" contributes this consoling fact:

During the marrying age—up to 25—young men outnumber girls. But since women live longer it's inevitable they'll end up being more numerous. By the time they've reached 65 and are mostly over the nesting urge, the feminine kind outpoint men 10 to 8.

The shift to numerical female superiority isn't the only thing happening to the population. It's also growing rapidly.

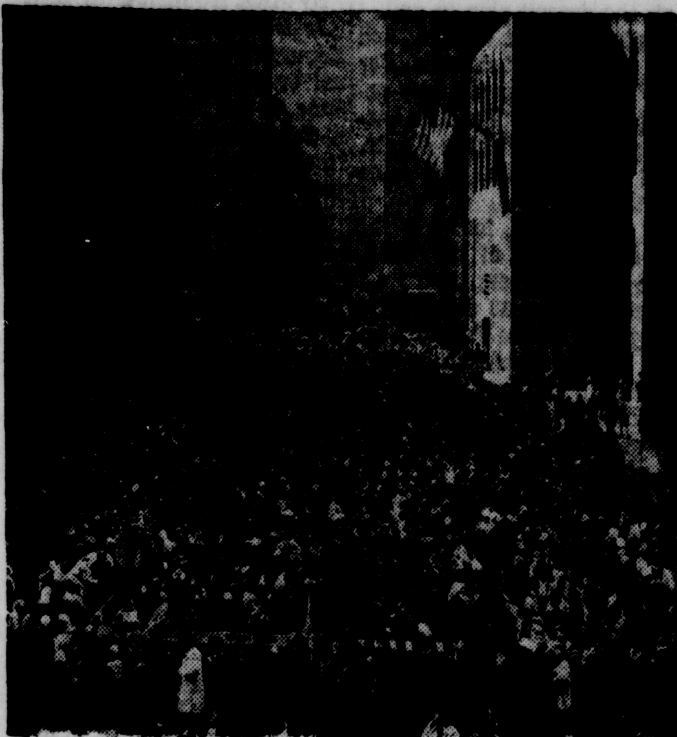

You may think the country is already pretty crowded. Stick around. By 1975 the population will reach 235 million, the report surmises. That's 45 million more people than we've got now.

The new survey, written by Arnold B. Baruch, points out:

More than half of that 235 million will be under 26 years of age. You can see what that means in the way of wedding bells. For 1975 alone, the report anticipates more than 2 million marriages.

That same momentous year, 5 million birth announcements are expected to be dropped in the mail. It will be an even more awesome baby boom than that of the postwar period, which continued through the '50s and produced close to 3 million a year.

About a million new families set up housekeeping each year in the 50s. There were 55 million households in the country in 1962, if you include single people living alone. By 1975 the number may total 68 million.

More Divorces
The survey attributes the rapid rise in the number of new households to early marriage and a prosperous economy. Somehow, though, one out of every four marriages was ending in divorce by 1960.

In 1940, when couples were in less hurry to make the trip down the aisle, the divorce figure was one out of six.

But came World War II and young lovers decided to wait no longer. The marriage rate reached a new high by '42—115 marriages per 1,000 women aged 17 to 29. After the war, it jumped again, then slowed somewhat. But the average was about 1½ million nuptial ceremonies a year.

Half of the postwar brides were 20 or younger. That's near-

Beauty Queen Undaunted By Leg Loss

TULSA, Okla. (AP) "I'm going to walk and I'm not going to limp—not even a little limp." "Walking," pretty Roberta Scott went on, "will be a new challenge to me."

Miss Scott, a black-haired 21-year-old beauty queen, lost her left leg to a rare type of cancer. She has not lost her spirit, however—and she makes a lot of telephone calls to cheer up other people who have been struck by serious illness.

Miss Scott, a black-haired 21-home State University, entered the hospital Feb. 18 for treatment of what was thought to be a back ailment, a slipped spinal disc. But examination showed that a rare type of cancer had afflicted her left leg and that this had caused her back to hurt.

Doctors decided the leg would have to be amputated at the hip.

She needed a fairly rare type of RH negative blood, and she set about to get the needed blood herself.

"I called the University of Tulsa fraternity houses and other groups thought would respond," she says.

Respond they did. More than enough blood was donated, mostly from Tulsa and Oklahoma State students.

Eight days after the ampution, Miss Scott got out of bed—against orders. She called a small girl who has been bed-fast with muscular dystrophy to tell her a secret—"I've just hopped around my bed."

The girl has been walking since that call.

Others have been cheered by Miss Scott's calls or letters.

nightgowns, many from people she doesn't know. She also gets frequent telephone calls.

A Tulsa oilman calls her at the same time each day. A Tulsa radio personality who lost a leg has chatted with her to give her encouragement.

Friends at the Methodist Church she attends have contributed $2,000 to buy her two artificial legs—one for a spare. A junior high school algebra class donated $13.50.

Miss Scott, Miss Tulsa of 1961, is engaged to be married and loss of the leg hasn't affected her engagement. She would have graduated from college this year, but won't now.

"But one thing is certain," she says. "I will go back to OSU and finish next year."

She hopes to teach first or second grade or elementary music or art. She is a pianist, singer and artist.

She is looking forward to learning to walk again with an artificial leg.

"They say it will take several months," she says, "but I think I will be able to do it more quickly." She has already started reading on the subject.

"I'm glad it was my left leg," she says. "I had broken it once and it had a lot of stitches."

Ann Landers Answers

Dear Ann Landers: Help! Last week Mom got a letter from my aunt who lives in Texas. She is sending cousin Trudy to visit us for two weeks when school is out in June.

I saw Trudy last year at my grandmother's funeral and she's a moose. If they would let girls play on the football team Trudy would make All-American. I'll admit she's pleasant and has a cute sense of humor about her size. But, Ann, I know I'm going to have plenty of trouble getting her dates.

All the fellas want to see a picture of her and I'm afraid to show them a picture. Please give me some hints on how to get Cousin Trudy fixed up.—TEXAS HEADACHE.

Dear Headache: If there's any ail in the family, it wouldn't hurt to drop the word.

In the meantime don't try for the dreamboats who have dozens of girls chasing them. Instead, ask the quiet, less-demand fellows. They might welcome a fixed-up date.

Guest House

Dear Ann: My husband's son by a former marriage is 17. Bill lives in town with his mother. He is welcome to spend weekends with us but he never has shown much interest in doing so. He drops in occasionally on a Sunday and that's all.

Bill has a key to our home and this is what I'm writing about. Yesterday my neighbor told me that last month when we were away Bill brought a young girl and another couple into our home. This neighbor is not a gossip or a trouble-maker.

Should I tell my husband? If so, how? After all, Ann, I'm not the boy's mother. Please advise at once. — TROUBLED.

Dear Troubled: You aren't the boy's mother, but the home is half yours and you should not knowingly provide a 17-year-old boy with a such a setup.

Tell your husband to ask Bill for his house key and to make it clear he can visit only when you are at home.

Betrayed Maiden

Dear Ann: Seven months ago a young girl came to work in this office. She is about 21, sweet, refined and has a lovely, warm personality. Several of the fellows asked her out but she said she was engaged and couldn't accept dates. (The girl wore no ring.)

Last week she came to work looking pale and ill. She fainted at her desk and I carried her to the infirmary. An hour later the nurse called to ask if I would drive her home.

On the way home the girl sobbed out her story. She is pregnant, she can't work much longer and doesn't know what to do. The fellow she was "engaged" to is a married man who lied to her about his marital status. He offered her money to "get lost" but she refused and wants to go it alone.

I'm seriously thinking of asking her to marry me. I know this sounds wacky but think we could have a good life together even though we've never had a date.

I'm 30, have never been married and am willing if she is. Should I ask her? — LONG SHOT.

Dear Long Shot: If you marry the girl out of pity—or if she marries you because she's in a spot—the marriage is doomed from the start. Remember, this girl is virtually a stranger to you—and you to her.

I suggest that you steer her to an agency that will see her through the difficult days ahead. If you continue to see her and if the friendship blossoms into love, that's another story.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bit of Camouflage

If your legs are either too heavy or too thin, be sure to buy a dressmaker swimsuit or one that has little boy shorts. These styles will disguise your figure problem.

Miss Edna Richard Keeps Active

88, Still Teaches

A beloved Salem High School teacher of the yesteryears, Miss Edna Richards, of 1085 Jennings Ave., has never lost interest in young people or the teaching profession. Even at the age of 88, she is giving private tutoring to one pupil in German.

MISS RICHARDS IS from a family of teachers. Her grandfather, Samuel Richards, one of Salem's Quaker pioneers; her father, S. B. Richards; two aunts, Huldah and Hannah Richards, and a great-aunt, Elizabeth Richards, all were teachers. Miss Richards' father served as president of the Salem Board of Education for many years and was affiliated with the Buckeye Engine Co. (now the Bliss Co.) as secretary-treasurer for years.

This veteran teacher did not attend the city's public schools until she entered High School, having been tutored in the elementary grades by her aunt, Huldah, along with the other children in the family. She was the oldest of eight.

AFTER GRADUATING from Salem High School with the class of 1893, Miss Richards entered Swarthmore College, where she received her Bachelor of Arts degree and also served as dean of women.

It was at Swarthmore that Miss Richards became interested in the German language and there was elected to a year's Fellowship at Berlin University, Berlin, Germany. She received her Master's degree from Columbia University and completed her work for her doctorate at the University of Wisconsin.

Returning to Salem, Miss Richards taught German, Latin and English in the Salem High School for five years. Later she taught German in the Alliance High School and also taught German in the George School, private Quaker Institution at Newtown, Pa.

Miss Richards taught German in the Rayen High School, Youngstown, for 20 years and retired in 1940 after completing 45 years in the teaching profession. One of the joys of her sun-set years are the visits from former pupils.

Miss Richards' hobby is cats, although currently she does not have one. Her 17-year-old cat, Twinkle, died a few years ago and she has not replaced him. However, she does keep a cat scrapbook. It contains interesting articles about cats and attractive pictures of the animals.

The Richards home, where the family has resided for 75 years, is furnished with beautiful antiques. Miss Richards and her brother, S. B. Richards, only surviving members of the family, take pride in the pictures they have of some of Salem's Quaker pioneers and valuable information and books relating to Salem's early history.

EXPERIENCE PAYS — These four Leetonia High School seniors this year got invaluable know-how in their chosen occupations, experience they could never get from books. Completing the Distributive Cooperative Training program are: John Rance, (upper left) with his boss, Loren Pim of Salem, training at the Fordees Corp., Leetonia; Charlotte Shaffer and Pat Baker (upper right), studying practical nursing at Salem Central Clinic with Miss Hannah Hagan, supervisor; and Jim Hein (right) at Wooley Chevrolet garage in Leetonia as an auto mechanic.

Leetonia Pupils Get 'On-Job' Training

By GLENN SCHOTTEN

LEETONIA — A small band of Leetonia students have learned this year — learned well — that a lot of knowledge can't be gotten from books.

Hear one of them, John Rance, tell of his experience in DCT, short for Distributive Cooperative Education:

An apprentice machinist at Fordees Corp, here, John has had a little experience on the vertical milling machine, engine lathes, planer and turret lathe. "I could never have learned this out of a book," John says, thankful to the nth degree for the program by which he and other seniors work part of a day and study the other half.

HIS EXPERIENCE is common with others under the plan. John Rupert, who has been with the Canfield Tractor Co. says the program "was of real value because getting on-the-job experience shows a young person what the work world is like".

Although the program under the direction of Don Hoover is relatively small this school year, next year it is expected to encompass a larger group. The size of the program does not detract from its value to the students who find its goal magnetic. The program is aimed at those students who know full well they will not go on to college. Consequently, it gives these boys and girls the "jump" on others since many of them are launched on their life jobs long before graduation.

DCT, like its component, COE (Cooperative Office Education), has another advantage in acting as a deterrent to dropping out. Youths who are anxious to begin making money are more satisfied in this part-work-part-study program.

THE PROJECT HAS BEEN in effect here since 1956 and makes possible vocational training without a large outlay of money, such as required by big-city schools with full-time vocational departments. The key to its success, of course, is the willingness of Leetonia and other area businesses of firms to hire and train the youths.

COOPERATORS this year and the students with each are: Salem Central Clinic, Pat Baker and Charlotte Shaffer; Spalholz's Hardware of Leetonia, John Hall; Fordees Corp. Leetonia, Rance and Herb Dattilio; Columbiana Buick-Olds, Jon Cook; Wooley Chevrolet, Leetonia, Jim Hein.

Canfield Tractor Sales Co., Rupert; McPhee Brothers Ford, Canfield, John Wilms; Diamond Auto, John Peick; and Fredricks Motors, Canfield, Dwight Smith.

Fields in which students are working include pre-nursing, machine shop, welding, auto collision, auto mechanics, printing, farm machinery repair and electrical appliance repair.

AUDITORIUM SHARED

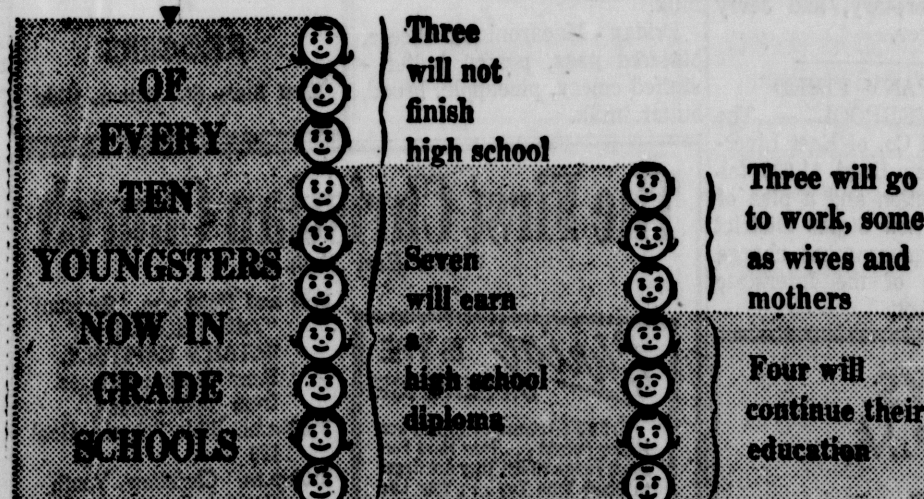

NEW YORK (AP) — A church and an experimental dramatic workshop are sharing facilities in a building around the corner from the Broadway theatrical zone.

The thespic venture, called the American Place Theater, was established a year ago to help established writers in other fields test their talent at stagecraft.

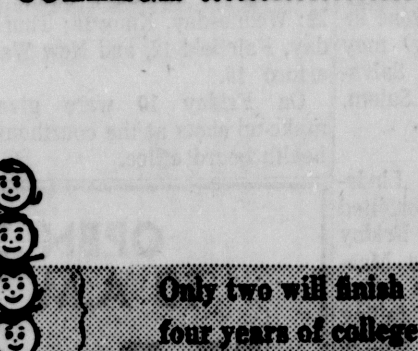

Although there is no formal connection between the theater and St. Clement's Protestant Episcopal Church which uses the same auditorium, there is a link. The Rev. Sidney Lanier, the vicar, is codirector of the American Place group.

SCHOOLS MUST HELP 26 MILLION YOUNGSTERS WORK THEIR WAY THROUGH THE CHALLENGING DECADE AHEAD

EIGHT OUT OF TEN WILL NOT COMPLETE COLLEGE

Education experts predict that 26 million young people will complete some or all of the 16 year normally required for an education through the college level during the decade of the '60s. These 26 million will enter the job market to join 58 million Americans who will be already employed.

Fall 1963 enrollment in public and private schools and colleges totals an all-time high of 51.5 million students, an increase for the 19th consecutive year.

Enrollments in kindergarten through eighth grade are 35 million; secondary schools are at 12.1 million; higher education enrollment is up to 4.4 million.

Almost 58 per cent of the population aged five to 34 were enrolled in some type of school last fall.

Americans aged 25 or over had completed an average of 11.4 grades, compared with 8.4 in 1940.

Expenditures for education on all levels total an estimated $32 billion for the 1962-63 school year. (Data for graph from the U.S. Office of Education, Washington, D.C.)

$2 Million Ransom Asked

Wife of French Plane Builder Is Kidnapped

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY
PARIS (AP) — Two hooded gunmen kidnaped the wife of Marcel Dassault, French nuclear warplane builder, early today. Hours later a Paris newspaper said a caller demanded $2 million ransom.

The anonymous call amid a massive manhunt for the men and their getaway driver, who sped away with Madeleine Dassault, about 65, after pistol-whipping her husband, 72, and their chauffeur, Louis Dubois, 48.

Police said it was uncertain whether the ransom call to the evening Le Monde came from the kidnapers or a crank. The caller was a man, officers said, but there were no further details on the conversation.

Interior Minister Roger Frey had road blocks set up before dawn along the south auto route where the kidnap car headed. Special squads watched airports, and frontier guards were on full alert.

A yellow and black sedan, believed to be the getaway car, was found abandoned later two miles from the scene of the crime.

Dassault, an ardent Gaullist and member of the French National Assembly, was not seriously injured in the attack, nor was Dubois. The gunmen apparently lay in ambush in a stolen panel truck as Dassault's car stopped in front of their luxurious home facing the Bois de Boulogne.

Mrs. Dassault tried to free herself as the kidnap car rolled up. She threw herself to the sidewalk, but the men bundled her into the car and sped off.

Dassault, maker of the supersonic atomic bomber, the Mirage IV, telephoned police.

Two motorists chased the getaway car, but it outdistanced them on the freeway leading to Versailles and beyond.

An eyewitness, Marcel Leaux, 45, of Paris, said Mrs. Dassault had whacked one assailant in the stomach with her umbrella. Her gold powder compact was found on the sidewalk.

Dassault designed the propeller for the famed World War I Spad fighter plane and built various military and civilian planes from 1918 to 1939.

He now is producing the supersonic, delta-wing, jet Mystere Mirage bomber. The plane, fourth in the Mirage series, is to haul France's nuclear bomb as the backbone of de Gaulle's nuclear striking force.

The Dassaults have two sons, Claude and Serge.

doubted whether a cloture move could be made before the second week in June. But he said the Senate would have to finish work on the bill in June because of a large backlog of work.

And less than two months away is the Republican National Convention which opens July 13 in San Francisco.

For only the third Saturday since the debate began March 9, the Senate did not meet today.

Leaders have sharply eased closed-door efforts to wrap up a package of amendments which they hope will produce the needed cloture votes.

These efforts have run into some difficulties, but both Democratic and Republican leaders said they were confident the proposed changes would be in shape to introduce formally next week.

They agreed, however, that there would be no floor action during the week, largely because of an expected high rate of absenteeism. The Senate will recess from Thursday to the following Monday for a long Memorial Day weekend.

under Truman that Marshall proposed the plan to aid a war-battered Europe to get back on its feet economically.

"To Marshall," Johnson said, "permanent peace depended upon rebuilding all European civilization within its historic boundaries.

"The Iron Curtain rang down on that hope. But the correctness of his conviction has not changed."

The vision of the Marshall Plan, the President said, was to strengthen the ability "of every European people to select and shape its own society...to bring every European nation closer to its neighbors in the relationships of peace."

This, he said, will not be brought about by any sudden settlement or dramatic deed.

"But the nations of Eastern Europe are beginning to reassert their own identity," he declared. "There is no longer a single Iron Curtain. There are many. Each differs in strength and thickness—in the light that can pass through it and the hopes that can prosper behind it."

Johnson said the United States is pledged to use every peaceful means so that "all of Europe may be joined in a shared society of freedom.

"In this way, I predict the years to come will see us draw closer to Marshall's bold design that at any time since he stood at Harvard and began to re-shape the world."

The license costs $25 per year, Bell said.

'Rocky' Pleased With Reception In California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he has found a swing to his favor in his California Republican presidential primary battle with Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater.

"Everywhere I have been this week," Rockefeller told a news conference Friday after four days of intensive campaigning, "people have been saying that they have switched; they are going to support me. There is real enthusiasm. Things are looking up."

Rockefeller returned home Friday night. He had the California campaign spotlight to himself the past week, with Goldwater in Washington.

But Goldwater took his turn today. He was to fly into Los Angeles with a 1 p.m. news conference his first order of business.

Beginning Monday, they'll both stump the state for six days in quest of California's 86 delegate votes at the Republican National Convention here in July. These go to the winner of a June 2 primary.

Hillings said Rockefeller is "splitting the Republican party asunder and thus providing ammunition for the Democrats come November."

Election Expenses Certified By Board

The Columbiana County Election Board certified to Auditor Kenneth Bell on Friday, the apportionment of expenses for special elections held in seven subdivisions on the same day as the May 5 primaries.

The total cost is $1,082.24, including $939.99 for ballots and $142.25 for legal advertising, Frank R. O'Hanlon, clerk, said.

In special elections held in connection with primaries and general elections, the subdivisions are required to pay only for the ballots and legal advertising. They are not charged with other expenses, such as salaries for poll workers, transportation, cost of setting up precinct equipment, rental of polling places, and poll books, O'Hanlon explained.

The East Liverpool School district was billed $569.16, including $526.96 for ballots and $42.20 for legal advertising for two levels it submitted.

oline. At the time deputies were not sure if his wife's body was still in the car.

Deputies surrounded his house, and Carroll shot at deputies with his shotgun. Deputy Sheriff Robert Hall was wounded slightly by pellets.

While deputies had the house staked out, it began to burn. Deputies said there was a report that a muffled gunshot, indicating that Carroll shot himself, was heard while the house was burning, but it was unconfirmed.

The blaze reduced the house to rubble. After the debris had cooled sufficiently, deputies began searching the ruins.

The bodies of Carroll and his wife were found close together, deputies said.

Sheriff Hoop said Carroll was admitted to Cambridge State Hospital as a mental patient last year. He could not say when Carroll was released.

The couple were the parents of three children, who had been living with Mrs. Carroll since they separated.

Only those who signed up to participate in the program will be eligible for diversion payments, marketing certificates on most of the wheat production, and price-support loan on all their 1964 wheat crop. The payments are based on 20 per cent of the county price support loan rate times the farm's normal yield, with provisions made for diverting additional wheat acreage under the program, Bates said.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise: Expensive bridal showers are lovely, but why not have one cost-free shower of items a new homemaker always needs and never has.

Examples:

Empty jars with lids, in assorted sizes for left-overs. You have none at first and too many later!

Two small cheese glasses for juice and a few jelly glasses to spare the new crystal at breakfast and between meals.

Two cups, saucers, and plates of old but matching china for breakfast use. You never use just two and have broken the rest of the set anyhow! The first chip in her new china will be so heartbreaking.

Rags... socks for applying polish, old T-shirts for polishing, old towels for cleaning jobs.

(She can't use those lovely embroidered tea towels for scrubbing and dusting.)

PARTLY USED bottles and cans of various polishes, waxes and cleaners. (You changed brands and never threw away the other kind, but it will help her decide which type she likes best.)

A few of the throw-away pans you never threw away... the kind that come with some rolls, mixes, and frozen foods.

Large size grocery sacks to line the kitchen waste basket. And for a personal touch, make easy-to-follow copies of a few of your favorite recipes... the tasty but easy to fix every day meals rather than your fancy specialties that take years to master. Scale the quantities down for two people because she can always find recipes for six to eight people.

In addition to economy for the giver, these items will help the new bride over the hurdle of newness to normal housekeeping.

PEGGY F. How true. You're great, Peg-HELOISE.

LETTER OF LOVE?

DEAR HELOISE: Before tucking hard boiled eggs into lunch boxes, scribble little messages on them, such as "Smile, the boss is looking," "I love you," "Nice day, huh?", etc.

My husband and daughter get quite a chuckle from these during their lunch time away from home.

CHRIS. B.

DEAR HELOISE: Why throw away cherry juice?

When I make pies I drain all the juice from the cherries and make the most delicious and colorful cherry jelly one can imagine.

From the juice of five cans of cherries I make three or four large glasses of jelly.

A CONSTANT READER.

DEAR HELOISE: Like many housewives I have a penchant for saving choice magazines—Christmas numbers and those devoted to topics in which I am interested.

Unfortunately the mass of material grew to gigantic proportions and when I tried clipping out the articles I wanted I could find no particular place to file them.

So, using a sharp, single-edge razor blade, I removed all the pages dealing with extraneous subjects and unwanted advertisements. This left me with slim magazines, bound as usual, which contained only the wanted material.

I can now stack them (chronologically, if desired) into less than one-fourth of the space they formerly occupied.

When I want to refer to something I have seen in a magazine there is considerably less "leafing through" to be done.

MAG SAVER.

Columbiana's Ward Qualifies In 3 State Track Events

Ace Places In Sprint Divisions Gosney To Compete In Low Hurdles

COLUMBUS — Columbiana's stellar sprint star Jim Ward qualified in the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes in the state Class AA track and field meet yesterday, giving him a chance for the first sprint triple since 1958.

Ward placed second in both the 220 and 440 events and came in fourth in the century. Another Columbiana speedster, Fred Gosney, qualified in the 180-yard low hurdles. No Salem thincids qualified at the meet.

Craig Wallace of Dayton Dunbar copped the 100 with a record-tying time of 9.7 and also won the 220, crossing the finish line just 21.6 seconds after the starter fired his pistol.

Clarence Brown of Cincinnati Taft won the 440-yard dash with a time of 49.1.

Cleveland Glenville loomed as the team to beat today as Ohio's scholastic track and field stars geared for final action in the state's 57th annual classic.

The upstarters were beaten by only 1 1/2 points in the race for Class AA honors a year ago by Dayton Dunbar. Glenville had a strong shot at the crown this year, though, since the Cleveland school qualified both relay teams and performers in three other events in Friday's preliminaries.

Dunbar needs an outstanding performance from Craig Wallace, if it is to repeat. Wallace qualified in both the 100- and 220-yard dashes and just missed in the 120-yard high hurdles. He also has a crack in the broad jump.

In Class A, Cincinnati DePores has a chance to retain its 1963 title but will have to thwart the challenge of ambitious Fairport Harbor.

Fairport Harbor picked up three points in the shot put and placed entries in four events and both relay teams in the finals.

Despite perfect weather conditions and Ohio State University's new asphalt-rubber track, Friday's activity produced no startling results.

One state record was tied when Roy Frazul of Warren Market zipped the 100 in :09.7 in a semifinal try.

In the lone Class AA event completed, William Lenkaitis of Youngstown South copped the discus with a heave of 172 feet, 10 1/2 inches. He won the event as a soph two years ago for Strongsville and was runnerup in 1963.

In small school field events, Merlyn Micheliis of Tontogany Otsego won the shot put with a 53-foot, 6 1/2-inch performance. The pole vault went to Richard Steele of Newton Falls Braceville, with 12-8, and the broad jump to David Miller of Georgetown with a 21-6 effort.

Slaps Two Homers, Single As Tribe Triumphs 5-3

Brown Stars As Indians Whip Detroit

CLEVELAND (AP) — Larry Brown broke into the Cleveland Indians' lineup 18 days ago as a result of an injury to Vic Davalillo. He isn't going to give up that berth easily.

The 24-year-old infielder rapped two homers and a single Friday night, driving in three runs that led the Tribe to a 5-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Brown, who weighs only 165 pounds, smacked one of a pair of first-inning homers for the Indians, who came up with a total of four for the night.

Dick Howser led off with a single against Mickey Lolich, the southpaw who whipped the Indians handily Sunday. Then Brown belted one over the left field fence.

With one out, Max Alvis drove the ball far over the center field fence. It was one of the longest clouts seen in Municipal Stadium in recent years, hitting the bleacher wall at the 470-foot mark on the first bounce.

Jerry Kindall socked one in the second, and Brown touched off the exploding scoreboard again in the fifth with another drive over the left field fence.

Southpaw Jack Kralick, whose 1.31 earned run average is one of the best in the league, gave up 11 hits over 62-3 innings but emerged with his fourth straight victory.

A throwing error by Woodie

Held gave the Tigers their first run in the fourth. Detroit added another in the fifth on back-to-back doubles by Don Wert and Jerry Lumpe, and Bill Freehan homered in the sixth.

In the seventh, Manager George Strickland called in Don McMahon, who has appeared in 13 of the Indians' 29 games. McMahon struck out pinch-hitter Gates Brown to end a threat. The veteran reliever finished the game without further trouble.

Chicago Trims Senators 3-1 Yankees Triumph Over Angels 4-3

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unlike most players, Juan Pizarro took a vacation this spring. American League batters wish he were still on it.

The Chicago White Sox left-hander became the league's top pitcher Friday night, winning his fifth game without a loss in Chicago's 3-1 victory over the Washington Senators.

Pizarro allowed only four hits, struck out 13 and didn't walk a batter as he lowered his earned-run average to 1.15, best among the league's starting pitchers. The triumph also kept the White Sox in first place, 20 percentage points ahead of Baltimore.

The 27-year-old Puerto Rican pitched winter league ball until mid-February, then rested while he disagreed with the White Sox management over his salary for this year. He finally signed on March 25.

He didn't make his first start until April 24, 10 days after the season started. It didn't take long, though, for Pizarro to show his left arm had none of the soreness that kept him out of action the last five weeks of 1963.

Home runs decided three of the four other games played in the American League Friday night.

Rocky Colavito's 12th homer brought Kansas City a 4-3 victory over Boston, ninth-inning homers by Sam Bowens and Johnny Orsino carried Baltimore past Minnesota 6-5, Cleveland dominated Detroit 5-3 as Larry Brown hit two home runs and New York nipped Los Angeles 4-3.

Giardello Wins Decision Over Rivero

By BARRY DAVIS

CLEVELAND (AP) — "You can have my share of that little guy from here on," said middleweight champion Joey Giardello after the rocky finish of a 10-round scrap with Argentina's Rocky Rivero.

Although he was hit hard at the finish, Giardello won a unanimous decision in the non-title rematch Friday night. That was better than his split decision over the 27-year-old Rivero April 17, when only one point separated the two.

"He did his job—put me in shape for a 15-rounder," Giardello said.

"If I was 22 or 24, I'd take care of him like that," said the 33-year-old champion, snapping his fingers. "He's small—tough to get at. I couldn't get the range."

Rivero thought he should have won the decision. "I win it very big, but I don't get it. He was like this," and Rivero staggered back in a little circle, waving his arms helplessly to demonstrate.

In his second fight since winning the title from Dick Tiger last December, Giardello jabbed, counterpunched and back-peddled most of the way, but piled up points steadily.

There were no knockdowns in the nationally televised fight, but Rivero landed a right to Giardello's head in the ninth that staggered the champion.

Giardello, 164 1/2, was most accurate with his punches in the fifth through the eighth rounds. Rivero, at 165, tried to get inside but Giardello danced away much of the time.

Rivero came on strong in the last two rounds, but Giardello was able to weather the storm and even get in a few licks himself.

Billy Casper Takes Lead In Memphis Open

By VAN SAVELL

MEMPHIS (AP)—The scene of the $50,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament is no pitch 'n' putt course, but don't try to tell Billy Casper.

The portly California pro fired a seven-under-par 63 Friday and took the second-round lead with a 132, two strokes ahead of his nearest challengers.

Casper pitched with perfection, using his sand wedge eight times and his pitching wedge once, yet he was in only one trap. He had seven one-putt greens and 10 two-putt greens. The finale was a bouncing 90-foot chip for an eagle on the 18th hole.

There was no explanation for the round, which tied the tournament record, except maybe rest.

"I hadn't played in nine days," said Casper. "I figured I'd kick around a couple of days and play well on the weekend. I'm just a day ahead of schedule."

Trailing Casper at 134 were defending champion Tony Lema and muscular Mike Souchak. Lema had a 66 to go with his first-round 68. Souchak added a 65 to his earlier 69.

Doug Sanders, Gene Littler and David Boies were grouped at 135. Sanders had a 68, Littler a 69 and Boies a 66. Bob Duden, the first-round leader at 65, slipped to 71 for a four-under-par 136.

Perennial fierna ootral dn Perennial favorite Arnold Palmer had his troubles, including a double bogey on the par five No. 16, and stumbled in with a 73 for 139. Jack Nicklaus, after bogeying No. 2, finished with a 70 for a 142.

There were 74 sub-par rounds Friday over the 6,466-yard, 34-36-70 Colonial Country Club course. The cut, at four-over-par 144, left 100 players in today's third round.

Giants Wallop Pirates 8-3

Mays Hits 18th Home Run of Year

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays made four hits—one without a bat.

Willie, the captain, made a big hit before the game when he turned in San Francisco's lineup card to the umpires.

Willie, the player, made three big hits during the game, collecting his 17th homer and two singles and regaining the National League batting lead while the Giants retained the league lead by walloping Pittsburgh 8-3.

Making his debut as team captain, Willie ambled to the plate before the game, and ran smack into his first inspection.

Head Umpire Chris Pelekoudas asked Mays to review the Candlestick Park ground rules. Willie did, and headed for the dugout. He never got there. Umpire Vinnie Smith, smiling broadly, asked for a repeat performance for the benefit of the other umpires.

Mays, however didn't do anything for the benefit of the Pirates.

He drove in the Giants' first run with a single in the opening inning, singled in the third before Willie McCovey and Orlando Cepeda hit consecutive homers and then hammered his homer in the sixth.

The 3-for-5 performance lifted Mays' average to .405, giving him back the batting lead he lost to Billy Williams of Chicago Thursday. Williams went 1-for-5 in the Cubs' 9-1 walloping of Cincinnati and dropped down to .393.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia's Chris Short shut out the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0 on eight hits. St. Louis belted Milwaukee 6-1 behind Curt Simmons' three-hit effort and the New York Mets edged Houston 2-1.

106 Cars Entered In Canfield Event

More than 106 stock cars will be in the lineup for the 12-race program at Canfield Speedway tonight. A 25-lap feature for the late models and 20 laps for the amateurs will highlight the action.

Bill Larson of Youngstown is hoping to hit the checkered flag for the first time. But also after No. 1 are George Hegedus of Cortland, Johnny Martin of Mineral Ridge, Nook Walters of Niles, Mason Heister of Youngstown, Dave Benner of Austintown, Lou Pallotta of Cleveland, Jim Case of Akron and Jerry Kavinsky of Youngstown.

Big task for these pilots, however, will be to outdistance the hard-driving Jim Bickerstaff of Mineral Ridge, who has won two features this year.

YOU CAN COUNT ON HIM — John Wilms (left), graduating senior at Leetonia High School who hasn't missed a day of school nor been tardy in 12 years. In picture and Principal George Trombitas look over school trophy case.

John Wilms Never Tardy, Either

12 Years In School And Never Absent

LEETONIA — He doesn't score the highest in math, or jump the highest on the track team or score the most points in football, but there's one thing young John Wilms has really excelled at.

It's just "being there".

John, lanky, modest boy, is winding up a career of 2,130 consecutive days in school. He'll graduate Tuesday and hopes to continue his apprenticeship as a garage mechanic at McPhee Motors in Canfield.

John, an average student, was "Johnny-on-the-spot" from the day he entered South side School as a shy beginner. By junior high days, sports were the big attraction and he went on to compete in football and track. He was center on the grid team the past two years and a guard as a freshman and sophomore.

"I just went because it was the place to go," John says simply, explaining his record, which although not rare, is unusual to say the least.

Such a lack of absenteeism implies high-perfect health. An older sister in the Lawrence Wilms family of nine was an expert childhood disease carrier. Just as sure as she caught the measles, chicken pox and for dependability of attendance in Sunday School, too. For several years, now, he hasn't missed a Sabbath at the Franklin Square Methodist Church.

"BEING THERE" seems to run in the Wilms clan. Another boy, Larry, a 1961 graduate, now with the Army on the Rhine, had a perfect attendance record in school, his mother said.

A daughter, now Mrs. Evelyn Campbell of Leetonia, who finished in 1955, didn't miss a day from her third grade on and Eileen, also a 1961 graduate, had 10 straight years of perfect attendance after her second year.

The couple still have two daughters in school; Linda, a junior, and Sue Ellen, a third grader. They hate to miss a day of school, too," their mother said.

A word from THERON at the Country Store

Have you tried our gallons of Country Store ice cream? It is really good. It now is packed in 3 flavors. Chocolate, vanilla and strawberry. I like the chocolate best. This ice cream sells for $1.00 per gallon. Lots of people use it for making milk shakes. With this warmer weather we are enjoying, a good thick milk shake hits the spot.

TV-Radio Today

By ALAN GILL
The Moderns

Craig Fisher, producer of NBC-TV's "Sunday," a kind of televised magazine that offers, each weekend, an hour of triple-sec pleasure before the Martians and colliers take over for the week, strolled among the overalled men who had been tearing. New York's Museum of Modern Art asunder and were now putting it back together again. Fisher's TV troupe, headed by their critic-in-residence on art and architecture, Aline Saarinen, will be wishing the museum a happy 35th birthday this Sunday afternoon, for the entire hour.

"We've just returned from three weeks in Europe," Fisher said, thumping a small cloud of plaster out of his jacket, "where we filmed Marc Chagall at his home in Venice in the South of France, the sculptor Giacometti in Paris, Alexander Calder in a small French town called Saché, Henry Moore in a London suburb and Joan Miro in Majorca. "The museum has been terribly important to these men, who were not known in America, when the Modern Art opened 35 years ago. But our show is about artists, rather than their pictures, and the museum is used only as a transition from artist to artist."

WHY NO PICASSO? "Well," said Fisher, "we tried, of course, since, as Aline says, the Modern Art has the greatest collection of Picassos in depth and quality anywhere. We went five times to his door and asked through a squawk box for the old boy's wife, but a butler's voice turned us down cold. Giacometti told us, 'I think he's sick,' and so did the townspeople when we asked."

In a third-floor alcove set aside for the NBC people, paintings were being hung and then, after filming, whisked away.

Mrs. Saarinen, a powder-blue cape over her shoulders, moved under the footlights to a point between two Chagall fantasies, looked into the camera and said that whereas Chagall dreamed his dreams in Russia as a child, he now does his dreaming in a perfumed garden in Venice.

"CHAGALL," SHE SAID, as the next scene was set up, "was the most outgoing of those we visited. His wife and I were strolling through the garden with him—on camera—when he suddenly ran, like a little boy, and snapped off two flowers and grandly gave one to his wife and one to me. In a very touching moment, I asked him what is the most pleasant thing in his day and he said, 'When I wake up in the morning and look over and see the smile of my wife.'"

Giacometti was a contrast. "We come in silently on a sad street in Paris in a steady rain. We go down a gray lane, round a corner where the walls are peeling, and then go down a long narrow alley to this tall, white figure of a man covered with plaster and with a terribly hunted face like George S. Kaufman's or Harpo Marx's. It's Giacometti. He says he moved into that cramped little studio 33 years ago and has had no time since to move out."

MRS. SAARINEN chatted on about the other artists. About Calder: how his home is built around wine caves, how wine was always at the ready for his NBC guests, how (if one is not careful) he will paint a flower on your jacket lapel or a squiggle up your arm. About Stuart Davis, filmed in New York: "He has such a tough bulldog face and he is complaining that the students at Yale Art School, where he once taught, do not look like artists. And of course nobody looks less like an artist than Davis."

Or about Salvador Dali and his conspicuous absence from the show: "As I said in our report on Huntington Hartford's new museum, the Gallery of Modern Art, Dali is Mr. Hartford's favorite artist and my least favorite artist."

gene Coca uses a loaded (with preposterous ammunition) pistol to outsmart a gang of bank robbers, in "The Great Bank Robbery." (Repeat.)

8:30 — Ch. 5, ARREST AND TRIAL: A mentally retarded killer (Robert Duval) gives police sergeant Ben Gazzara a run for his money and attorney Chuck Connors the problem of defending him, in "The Quality of Justice." (Repeat.)

9 — Ch. 3, BONANZA (Color): Three misguided outlaws attempt to locate gold hidden by Arthur Hunnicutt by holding his dog for ransom, in "Walter and the Outlaws."

10 — Ch. 3, THE RIVER NILE (Color): A picturesque documentary of the great 4,000-mile African river, from Ruanda Urundi to the Mediterranean Sea. James Mason narrates.

Beaver School Association to Fete Honor Pupils

The Association for the Advancement of Education in the Beaver Local School District will hold ceremonies next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Beaver Local High School to honor the top ten students in each of the grades 7 through 12. During this program, this group of approximately 60 students will be admitted to the Summi Decem honor society.

Joseph Coons will deliver the keynote address. Coons is the head of the Citizens Scholarship Committee. Dr. George VanHorne, retiring head of the district, will speak briefly, followed by Paul Dailey, president of the Beaver Local Board of Education.

Chairman of the Association, Dr. Arthur Cloran, will be aided by Don Stoll in presenting awards to the students.

The Junior High School band under the direction of Robert Sprague will also play.

The Beaver Local Association for the Advancement of Education will hold its next meeting June 3 at the elementary school.

Other officers named are: Vice chairman, Ben Barrett; treasurer, Lloyd Morrison, and Mrs. Ida Austin, secretary.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT

Tennis Is a Strenuous Game

Tennis, anyone? Whether you answer yes or no should depend on your general physical fitness. Tennis, you see, is a strenuous game.

If you are over 40 there is no reason why you should not still enjoy this game if you take pains to build up your fitness by observing a few basic principles.

Like handball and badminton tennis is a game in which sudden bursts of energy accompanied by quick movements are alternated with periods of rest. For the improperly conditioned player these short spurts often result in sprained ankles, twisted knees, torn calf muscles, shoulder and wrist injuries and tennis elbow.

IT IS ADVISABLE, therefore, to spend six or eight weeks before the season in walking, skipping rope and general calisthenics. When you finally step out onto the court ready to go, you should spend 15 or 20 minutes in a leisurely warm-up volley.

Avoid joint injuries by perfecting the technique of following through on each stroke and leave the violent cuts and smashes to the professionals. Learn to let the out-of-reach shots go.

In other words don't try to be a hero at the expense of your heart and your joints. Remember, you are playing a game, not winning a war. In this regard it is always better for your peace of mind, your health and your wallet not to bet on the outcome.

You're supposed to be having fun—not trying to make a place on the Olympic team. At 40, it's better to be slightly seedy than seeded.

As with all summer sports, sunburn and heat exhaustion are hazards to be avoided. It is better to play a little every day than to save it up and play several hours on the weekend.

If you can't play every day, it is doubly important to get your walk and your exercise on the days when you don't play. The former King of Sweden was still playing at 70 but then he played every day, using indoor courts in bad weather.

When you finish playing it is better to stroll around a bit than to sit down or lie on the grass.

Take a tip from the trainers of race horses in this respect. After the stroll, a shower or a short dip in the pool will be most refreshing. And don't forget—when you get too old for tennis, there's always ping pong.

Deputy Howard Gray said the intruders broke a window in the front of the building to gain entrance.

They also took three boxes of frozen fish, Gray said.
